REAL HOUSEWIVES OF BEVERLY HILLS STAR TAYLOR ARMSTRONG PUTS A SPOTLIGHT ON STARS' CHARITABLE WORKS

BEHIND THE SCENES...

WITH UNIVERSAL RECORDING ARTIST MAYRA VERONICA

My week began with the best event at JJ Abrams' Bad Robot studios in Santa Monica, sponsored by Coach to benefit the Children's Defense Fund. I spent time with Conan O'Brien and his wife, along with Katy Perry and also Orlando Bloom.

It was a top-tier night, followed later in the week by the MTV Movie Awards in Culver City, Calif. This show always promises to be one of the most fun events of the year and with categories like Best Kiss, Best Action Sequence and Best WTF Moment, how could they not be? The red carpet was packed with fans and some of the loudest screams were for Bella Thorne, who looked gorgeous in a beautiful Emporio Armani suit. When asked how she motivated herself to work out and always be in such amazing shape, she said: "For me, I make working out very fun. I do it with my friends."

The show began with an incredible performance by Selena Gomez, but the highlight for me was being just feet away from Brad Pitt! I thought he looked so hot that if I ever touched him I'd melt. It really was a magical night thanks to MTV!

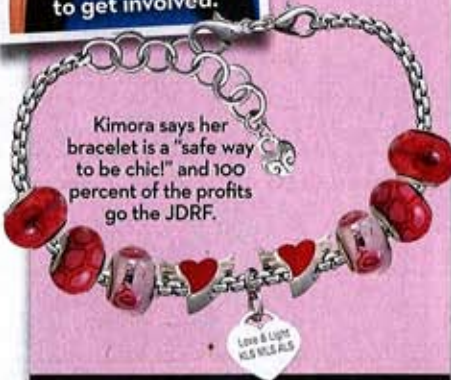

Kimora Lee Simmons, fashion mogul, author and star of TV show House of Fab and President and Creative Director of JustFab.com, says, "There are many people in my life, young and old, who I have seen suffer from diabetes. The Juvenile Diabetes Research Fund (JDRF) is such an amazing supporter of research that helps children and adults with this disease." She adds, "My daughters, Ming Lee and Aoki Lee, and I got a chance to work with the amazing people at Hope Paige and JDRF. And we designed a medical ID bracelet to raise awareness and help kids in need. Medical ID bracelets save lives and we're proud ours is fabulously fashionable, too!"

Kimora wanted to get involved.

Kimora says her bracelet is a "safe way to be chic!" and 100 percent of the profits go the JDRF.
